ABSTRACT

This handbook serves as a guide for the information professional who operates in cyberspace. The book provides practical explanations on technology and its applications to libraries and networked information systems, and easy-to-understand discussions of how new technologies will affect libraries and library careers. The book contains 64 articles and essays organized into 16 sections: (1) The Internet--The Basics; (2) Are You Wired In? (3) Read Your Mail! (4) Know Your Rights; (5) I'll Have My Agent Call Your Agent; (6) Power Tools for Cyberspace; (7) We All Need a Happy Home (Page); (8) Beyond Text; (9) Reference in Cyberspace; (10) I've Grown Accustomed to Your (Inter)Face; (11) Do You Mean the New Online or the Old Online? (12) Cyberspace Needs Technical Service; (13) Do You Have a License for That? (14) Standards Is Good; (15) So, You Want To Be a Cybrarian?; and (16) Cyberfuture. (SWC)
